

Dawn Wagenaar

Dawn has a Masters Degree in Educational Leadership from the University of St. Thomas and has led the marketing and PR efforts at several large firms over the past 16 years. Dawn is known for her:

Clear Vision and Communication. Dawn is our analyst. She is incisive about websites, sales materials and other communication vehicles and knows how to use design and words to bring attention to the message. She uses the Internet as her personal research assistant and finds loads of data others miss. A direct and clear communicator, she leaves a trail of clients who know who they are and know how to talk to others about it.

Ability to Get Things Done. An extraordinary event and project planner, very few people make it happen like Dawn. In spite of her commitments to networking, local and national associations and various Chambers of Commerce, (as well as her 4 year old going on teenager daughter named Bella), Dawn is a task-oriented, not done until it is done, everything looks effortless person. There will be no loose ends and undone items.

Amazing Connections in Any Community. If there is an opportunity to network, Dawn is there. She has started Power Up! – a young professionals networking group, Women in Networking, the local branch of the Association for Accounting Marketing and is active in several national committees. If a few phone calls need to be made to the right people to get things done or spill the information, they are probably on Dawn's speed dial.

Expect an amazing network of people who will speak off the record but provide important information, a beautifully-managed project and a demanding team leader who delivers results when promised.
